Fabian Morales is a Colombian Film maker. After seeing the problems of homelessness he decided to use his art to raise awareness. Fabian started working on a documentary in 2010 with one mission, 'Tell the people of the world who these people on the streets really are.' Mr. Morales has produced a documentary for this purpose. "TAKE ME HOME" Is a well written and directed documentary that shares the plight of the homeless.

Today, Fabian continues to raise awareness all around the nation about homelessness. His biggest mission is to talk to the youth about the problem. Utilizing the footage from the documentary Fabian has been able to move people into action. Fabian states this journey has changed his life in unimaginable ways, now he is fully committed to helping the homeless by becoming their public voice and telling people all over the world of his journey into their lives and how he found true love and God through the lives of these people.

Take me Home is a documentary that takes you on a journey of the true accounts of families, couples, single men and women as well as children whom are left to face the disheartening situation of being homeless. Homelessness is becoming more prevalent in the U.S and no longer affects only the unemployed and drug addicted but people of all ages, backgrounds, beliefs and genders. Take Me Home looks in depth at the population of the homeless within the Orlando city area and delves into several of the stories to learn more about his imminent issue. Living out of shelters, fending for themselves with little to no food are some of the daily struggles facing those who are homeless. The homeless population continues to grow each year even within the school system and this is not only a fixable issue but one that needs to be addressed soon. This documentary shows you some of the faces behind small groups as well as large organizations that really help the homeless with food, shelter and even job opportunities. Take Me Home calls for support from its audience and shows what it is really like to be on the streets. It carries an important message of the basic ultimate need and desire of most anyone; having a place to come home to.

These links will share with you more about the works Brother Fabian has done and is doing about this problem in America and around the world.
