Douglas E. Woolley graduated from University of South Florida in 1989 with a B.S. Engineering degree in Computer Science. Upon graduation, Doug worked as a part of the Management Association Program at NCNB (now known as Bank of America). Currently he works as a Web Developer and Administrator for Verizon (formerly GTE) and has traveled often to Portugal and to Venezuela (from 1995 to 2000) to install and implement a new computer software system that produces phone bills for these countries. Having worked evenings from 2002 to 2009, his responsibilities included overseeing and monitoring many of Verizon's mainframe computer software systems and troubleshooting any problems. As of March, 2009, Doug is now working days as a Web Developer, programming in languages such as ASP.NET, C# .NET, Visual Basic, Java EE, JavaScript, XHTML, and using Databases such as SQL Server and Access.

As a senior in high school, Doug was ranked #1 in Florida in both mathematics and computer science, was team captain of the top computer-programming team in Florida, and placed 3rd in (individual) mathematics and 5th in (team) computer-programming at the national championships for Mu Alpha Theta. The Westinghouse Talent Search named him as one of the top 300 high school scientists in America for his computer program that graphically solves the Rubik's Cube and other mathematical puzzles. By the age of 20, Doug began receiving royalties for providing computer-programming illustrations for two university textbooks on computers, and later he authored an 800-page computer-programming book. From 1985 to 1996, Doug served as the main author and official judge of the Florida High School Computing Competition, sponsored by USF. Additionally, he is a member of American Mensa.

Doug grew up attending the Lutheran Church and entered a personal relationship with Christ through faith at the age of 13. While attending college, he joined a dormitory Bible study that led him into a deeper walk with God. Soon afterwards, Doug received the Baptism in the Holy Spirit and became an effective witness for the Lord Jesus.

As a committed Christian, Doug has a passion for studying and teaching the Bible. He has led weekly Bible studies for years with interested college students, church members, co-workers, and ministry interns. He also graduated with a B.S. in Interdisciplinary Studies (concentration in Bible/Theology) at North Central University, Summa Cum Laude. He then finished a Masters degree in Bible/Theology at Southwestern A/G University, with a 4.0 GPA. Serving in his local church, Victorious Life Church (affiliated with the Assemblies of God), Doug has taught Sunday School for the New Believers class and the Singles class. Further, Doug has taught college level Bible courses through One Accord School of Ministry (including Acts, New Testament Survey, Biblical Interpretation, and Apologetics). Recently, he taught Berean Bible courses through Generate School of Ministry.

Doug's most recent book (and first Christian book) was published in December of 2008, entitled The Value of Work in the Eyes of God. Additionally, Doug conducts a seminar entitled "Empowered to Turn Your Job into Ministry."

Doug has served in leadership positions in the Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship International (FGBMFI) since 1991, and he has performed missionary work in multiple countries. He currently serves as the USA Southeast Regional Director and as an International Director for FGBMFI.

Doug resides in Tampa, Florida with his wife Marsha, son Isaac, and recently adopted son Dimitri (from Kazakhstan). Marsha Woolley served as Director of Women's Ministries for the Assemblies of God in the Peninsular Florida District, serving 350 churches, from 2007 to 2013.
